

Area Names are name components that apply to a geographic or jurisdictional region. Just like the familiar area codes used in the telephone system, area names can be omitted if the context of the remainder of the name is clear just as area codes can be omitted when making "local" calls.

In the drawing, each of the blocks represents an "area," each of which may have named entities hierarchically beneath it. So most "facilities" on the Ithaca campus have a name in the EMCS that starts with the facility (usually building) name. But some EMCS points apply campus-wide or are considered part of the endowed or state campus infrastructure and having these "areas" in their names can be useful.
